We first approached Bite IT when we decided that our needs had outgrown our first website, and that we needed a higher-specification to meet the needs of our customers and to continue to grow our business. Bite IT delivered all of that and more in the site that they designed and developed for us. Since going live www.homes4u.co.uk has generated increased business, raised brand awareness and received much positive feedback on its style, content and ease of use.

The internet is a major source of new business for the company and vital to homes4u's continued success. Bite IT have understood our needs, and have worked effectively to make tangible a collection of ideas. As well as delivering an excellent website, the team at Bite have also been a pleasure to work with, friendly and professional. I would highly recommend their services to anyone who is looking for a stylish site which delivers on its promise, and who appreciates the importance of building long-term relationships- something which is key to Bite and to homes4u.
